An essential aspect of the campaign was educating students on the proper segregation of biodegradable and non-biodegradable waste. The introduction of 'Blue' and 'Green' coloured bins facilitated this process, encouraging responsible waste disposal. A pledge-taking ceremony marked the beginning of the day, where students solemnly vowed to be stewards of the environment. Emphasis was placed on keeping surroundings clean, reducing waste, conserving resources, and preserving the planet's natural beauty.

Additionally, tree planting was highlighted as a step towards a greener environment. The activities organised during Swachhata Pakhwada extended the mission of cleanliness to the community. The campaign's success was not only measured by the immediate impact but also by the commitment of students to implement the practices learned at home. Cleanliness became a shared responsibility and commitment among the students, creating a positive ripple effect within the community.
